gedenkstaette@zwangsarbeit-in-leipzig.de zwangsarbeit-in-leipzig.de +49 341 235 20 75

gedenkstaettefuerzwangsarbeit

Opening hours

Tuesday to Thursday: 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday: 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How to find us

Tram 3 / Bus 90 Permoserstraße / Torgauer Straße

Free admission Wheelchair-accessible

The Leipzig Nazi Forced Labour Memorial is maintained by the association Erinnern an NS-Verbrechen in Leipzig e.V. This work is funded by the Cultural Office of the City of Leipzig and the Saxon Memorial Foundation on the basis of the budget approved

Guided tours for groups can also be booked individually for a fee.

The memorial also offers educational programmes for school pupils and young people that are specially tailored to the target group in terms of their content and approach.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment, please send an email to: gedenkstaette@zwangsarbeit-in-leipzig.de

The Leipzig Nazi Forced Labour Memorial is run by the association Erinnern an NS-Verbrechen in Leipzig e.V. (Remembering Nazi Crimes in Leipzig).

You can support our work by making a donation to the following account:

Erinnern an NS-Verbrechen in Leipzig e.V. Sparkasse Leipzig

WELADE8LXX

ONATIONS

DE82 8605 5592 1100 1609 96

The association Erinnern an NS-Verbrechen in Leipzig e.V. is recognised as a nonprofit organisation. We would be happy to provide a donation receipt.

If you would like to support our work by joining our association as a supporting member, we would be delighted to send you further information.

Leipzig Nazi Forced Labour Memorial

A PUBLICLY VISIBLE NAZI CRIME

During the Second World War, Leipzig was an important centre for armaments and industry. More than 75.000 people from all over Europe were exploited here as forced labourers. They were deployed in all areas: in private households as domestic helpers, in municipal institutions, such as the public utilities and Leipzig's transport companies, in small firms and especially in large arms manufacturers.

The forced labourers were housed in more than 600 camps and collective accommodation facilities. Some of these were large barrack camps, but factories, inns, schools, theatres and clubhouses were also converted into accommodation. Many of the camps were located in the immediate vicinity of the city's population. In addition, six subcamps of the Buchenwald concentration camp were set up in Leipzig and the surrounding area from 1943.

The Leipzig Nazi Forced Labour Memorial is located on the historic site of the company headquarters of Hugo Schneider AG (HASAG). HASAG was Saxony's largest arms manufacturer during the Second World War and is considered one of the companies to have profited the most from Nazi forced labour.

 Soviet prisoners of war clearing an area hit by an air raid in front of the Königsbau building on Augustusplatz, 1943 (Leipzig City Archive)

The memorial's digital map records more than 700 sites of Nazi forced labour in the Leipzig area.

Between 1939 and 1945 more than 10 000 civilian forced labourers, prisoners of war and concentration camp inmates were forced to work at the HASAG factory in Leipzig alone. The company mainly produced weapons and Panzerfäuste (a German rocket-propelled grenade similar to a bazooka) for the German military.

SAG)

SCHNEIDER

HASAG owned several plants in the German Reich and took over three factories in occupied Poland after the start of the war. From the summer of 1944, it set up subcamps at several factory sites in the Reich. These subcamps were under the control of the Buchenwald concentration camp.

The HASAG Leipzig subcamp was located in the northern part of the company's Leipzig premises. More than 5.000 female and 700 male prisoners were housed here.

Founded in 2001, the memorial presents a permanent exhibition on the history of Nazi forced labour in Leipzig. The exhibition focuses in particular on the deployment of thousands of foreign civilian forced labourers, prisoners of war and concentration camp inmates at the arms company HASAG.

It collects documents about Nazi forced Jabour and related objects and conducts research on individual topics. In a reference library, it holds relevant publications for research purposes and provides advice on research.

It also documents the fate of Nazi forced labourers and is a point of contact for former forced labourers and their families

The memorial's library and archive can be consulted by appointment during regular opening hours.

You can find out about current dates and our educational offerings on our website: www.zwangsarbeit-in-leipzig.de

If you would like to contribute objects or documents to our collection, please contact us.

◀ Forced labourers producing Panzerfäuste at the HASAG factory in Leipzig, 1943/44 (GfZL, Maria Caroli)